

Sanna Purinton broaches a question on many people's lips – who was Jesus and what is the secret of his undying appeal to so many people?

Light Source

As Christmas approaches, my mind wanders back to a time when a baby some call Jesus of Nazareth was purported to be born. We collectively celebrate his birth on December 25, whether or not this is his actual birthday. The question arises, "Who is this entity Jesus and what, if any, purpose does his life, his experiences and his energy hold for those seekers of Light and Love in the 21st century?"

There have always been times when individuals desired to know the essence of soul. In spiritual practices globally and throughout time immemorial, there have always existed religious icons. There have been those who have held a place of authority through practice, doctrine and ritual, while conversely, others knew deeply within their being that there was a unique and personal relationship to Spirit awaiting them, regardless of the popular belief of the day.

It is in this spirit that we "explorers of Spirit consciousness" or "New Age" embrace our unique and individual path to awakening. Perhaps this is why we know of the enigmatic historical identity many of us now call Yeshua. It is as if we innately know that his relationship to Spirit was unequivocal, unshakeable and irrefutable and that we, too, desire this in our own lives. He shows us that "it" can be done from a very human perspective and, thus, we are inspired to be the light, not only in our own lives, but in the lives of our families, community and even the planet.

Yeshua was born to a religious family who were called Essenes. His uncle was a great orator called John the Baptist; his cousin we know as the visionary, John the Beloved; his sister, a wise woman known as Martha. But it was his mother, a young woman we know as Mary, who played a significant role in steering her child to personal spiritual awakening.

As with all religious doctrines, the rules and structure can become the focal point of the teachings and, so, the true seeker may begin to rebel against the dogma and begin to seek their own unique relationship to Spirit. Mary was a seeker of truth and Light; she left the credo of the Essenes behind, instead choosing the personal relationship to her practice of enlightenment. But when she conceived her first child, she had a dream, which clearly stated that her son would be schooled in the Essene way of life and that he had a great task to perform. He would later use that religious foundation as a springboard to discover a deeper and wider relationship to Spirit, leaving the outdated dogma well and truly behind.

In Mary's profound wisdom and her deeply personal experience of Spirit, she began her communication and teaching to her unborn child through meditation and dialogue. She spent great periods of time in deep spiritual surrender in caves, while holding her baby deep within her body. In every action this wise woman undertook, she knew that all is Spirit and therefore this consciousness that she held would affect her son. She was his first great teacher of Light – the teaching started before he was born!

The conception of her son was typical. Had it been anything other than this, a separation would have been created between us mere mortals and what he came to understand about Spirit. His "commonness" is at the very root of our attraction to him, or at least for those who are intrigued by him from outside the context of mainstream Christianity. In other words, an ordinary man can truly "wake up" and "He" proved it.

It is curious that many within the so called "New Age" or "Spirit consciousness" movement harbour, and may even share, a secret, silent fascination about the true identity of this enigmatic figure. They sometimes divulge these well hidden questions and curiosities to a dear and faithful friend with whom they feel safe enough to expose this hidden aspect of themselves. But more often they gently wait for a titbit of useful information that will give them something more.

In some cases the desire to learn more comes from a place deep within. Many know, through past life regression, that Yeshua played a monumental role in their lives, either as Essenes, Romans, Knights Templar, cloistered nuns and monks and Cathar – this list is continually growing as we are to this day still touched by him. We find a soul memory that calls us from deep within.

'It was his mother, a young woman we know as Mary, who played a significant role in steering her child to personal spiritual awakening.'

There may be simply a curiosity around him or a sense of peace and ease at the mere mention of his name. It is not the church that attracts the Spirit consciousness explorer, but "the man" who holds our true curiosity and serenity.

Some seekers of truth find scant yet curious information in countless best sellers, such as The Book of Love, The Da Vinci Code or Labyrinth. Even popular movies often explore this enigmatic character who resonates so deeply with so many. For some, it is this information that they hope will assist them to reconcile the fragmented and popular religious beliefs into a new, fresh, tangible awakening relevant to "this" period of time. The information they await is not simply fuel or dogma to regurgitate as is so often the case with fervent religious believers, but rather, it supports the overwhelming desire to understand this Yeshua's intent in his own time, and to discover if there is any relationship to the seeker's 21st century spiritual journey. With ears perked, they devour the stories from a

2011 – a Master Year

As 2010 draws to a close, 2011 holds the promise of greater Light in our lives if we seek it, as Sanna Purinton explains.

● In short, "11" is a master number because it holds an energy of equality. The true energy of Yeshua was that of equality.

● The Cathar, who embodied the spirituality of Yeshua, had no symbols that represented their spirituality. If they had a name or a symbol this would, in fact, have been contrary to the very thing they stood for, which was, and is, the energy of equality in the impersonal nature of pure love. We humans, through ego, madly create the edifice of self through personalising everything, yet ironically we get to have grace and freedom when we know impersonal nature.

● Yeshua knew that freedom existed in the impersonal and the "11" is clearly a visual and vibrational symbol of this energy. It is a non-judgmental, perfectly balanced, whole and pure energy of Light. Light is non-judgmental.

new perspective, eager to see the old knowledge from a dynamic and relevant modern point of view.

Sometimes our spiritual seekers find themselves drawn to him – in some cases, they are even in love with him. This can be rather challenging if they are not the least bit interested in being a Christian.

They are not so much interested in the so called impenetrable conception and the martyr dying on the cross, but rather in the master teacher who was so clearly connected to Spirit, as were his mother and other family members. It is this connection that they seek for themselves.

Yeshua's story is about a man, a soul, who, through hard work, practice, commitment and surrender, realised what all masters have discovered; that the kingdom of God, Spirit, universal mind or Who you BE lives within each of us! This is the message, simple and clear. We have "it" coded within our DNA and in our cells, just as he did. This coding is the ability to "wake up" and achieve a similar enlightenment to that of Yeshua himself. We seekers of Light and Love are like homing pigeons wishing to go home to roost, to be at peace in acceptance of the true awareness of Spirit in our lives. It would thus be natural, predictable and even acceptable that many of us would be completely inspired by Yeshua.

We can all humbly relate to Yeshua's

● So when we look at a "9", we have number of completion, a number that shows us the rounding up of energy. With the "10", we have a foundation building energy, so for all of 2010 we have built, defining, defining, defining, anchoring the energy for the future, the next 10 years in fact. In 2011, we have the energy and vibration of "action", which we have defined as the "10" energy.

● For us Spirit consciousness individuals, the "11" gives us the potential for Light in our lives. If we choose this Light, we have a year that will give us a beautiful healing energy, not only for ourselves but also for others, regardless of what is being presented environmentally. We will be the Light to the world just as Yeshua was. But nothing will occur without conscious intent.

● I feel if people have an awareness of this potential they may create a discussion group or a community of like-minded souls through which to share and learn. This is in fact why many Cathar are incarnating during this time.

40 days and 40 nights in the wilderness, as we face our day-to-day struggles with life, ego, drama, betrayal and collapse. We relate to his frustration in the temple when those moneylenders and traders misunderstood the purpose of spiritual practice and of money. There are many stories that are told biblically that have resonance in our day-to-day spiritual practice. His pure and non-religious teachings create a road map we can explore if we choose, as we know there are indeed "many roads to Rome".

What is being taught today in a limited capacity in temples, synagogues and churches are words imparted through an observer's filter, and not the dynamic living experience written by an ascended master. His words alone hold transformational qualities, not only in their wisdom, but even within the sentence structure. We await a future day when his original writings may be found.

For all of us seekers of truth, Light and Love, his life clearly demonstrates a connection to all. We know him to be a spiritualist, an explorer, a meditator, a healer, a visionary and a lover. We know him to be a brother in Spirit, whose offerings assist us to determine our own unique journey. It is for this reason that his life has a purpose – that we can all know we are indeed sons and daughters of the Beloved.

DID YOU KNOW?

Mobile phones, computers and other wi-fi devices have been suspected as the cause of:

HEADACHES • LOSS OF MEMORY
POOR CONCENTRATION
CONFUSION • NAUSEA
SLEEP DISTURBANCE
DISTORTED VISION
MUSCLE WEAKNESS
TIREDNESS/FATIGUE
REDUCED IMMUNITY TO ILLNESS

Scientists have identified these conditions as the early effects of radiation from the regular use of mobile phones and wi-fi with the potential to develop into more serious illnesses. The Quartz PhoneShield and Wi-FiShield defends the immune system's resistance to illness against the effects of radiation.

Ask yourself this question...

If there is a spark of truth in all the recent expert reports about the dangers of mobile phone and wi-fi radiation, shouldn't I take some precautionary action to protect myself and my family?
